PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Mr. Georgeson, a partner in the litigation department of the firm, practices primarily in construction law, commercial and complex litigation, and appellate law. He practices in state and federal courts at the trial and appellate level, and also has extensive experience in alternative dispute resolution. He is admitted to practice in all of the Nevada state courts, the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the United States Supreme Court.

AREAS OF EXPERIENCE

Construction Law

Mr. Georgeson is the chairman of the firm's Construction Law Group. He represents primarily general contractors, but also owners, developers, subcontractors, suppliers, and trade associations, in all aspects of both private and public construction law. This includes the drafting, reviewing and negotiating construction contracts and representing his clients in all types of construction disputes—bid disputes, defective construction claims, and payment disputes, including mechanic's lien and bond claims—as well as licensing, construction labor law, and legislative lobbying on construction law issues. Mr. Georgeson regularly presents seminars on construction law topics, including mechanic's liens, construction disputes, construction contracts, contract documents, design build, and construction labor law. He has also authored numerous articles on construction law, which have been published in various legal and trade publications. These articles include "Methods of Resolving Disputes," "Your Code to the Codes," "Unlicensed Contractors," "Terminating a Contract," "New Prompt Pay Laws," "Liquidated Damages," and "Mechanic's Liens."

Commercial & Complex Litigation

Mr. Georgeson has extensive experience handling all types of commercial litigation cases for clients ranging from small local firms to national and international publicly traded companies. His typical cases involve breach of contract, interference with contract, partnership and ownership disputes, commercial landlord-tenant disputes, fraud, conversion, and intellectual property claims. Mr. Georgeson also represents several Northern Nevada casinos and other property owners, defending those clients against premises liability claims such as negligence, negligent security, and negligent hiring and training.

Appellate Practice

Mr. Georgeson is licensed to appear before the Nevada Supreme Court, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the United States Supreme Court. He has significant experience with writs of mandamus, appeals of administrative decisions, and appeals from state and federal trial courts. Mr. Georgeson is an appellate lawyer representative to the United States Courts for the Ninth Circuit. In that position, he acts as a liaison between the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and federal appellate practitioners to assist the court with the administration of justice. Mr. Georgeson is also a member of the State Bar of Nevada's appellate litigation section.

REPRESENTATIVE ENGAGEMENTS

Negotiated, drafted, and edited construction and EPC (engineering, procurement, and construction) contracts for Nevada projects with a total value in excess of $1 billion.

Represents the owner/developer of a high-profile multi-billion dollar construction project in northern Nevada.

Represented the owner of a geothermal power plant in a $155 million mechanic's lien case to reach a complicated but satisfactory settlement with the lien claimant and project lenders.

Represented a general contractor client in an extra-work claim for unforeseen underground conditions against the public agency owner. Prevailed at AAA arbitration, obtaining a judgment for full value of the extra work claim plus attorney's fees and costs.

Represented a general contractor in a commercial construction defect case relating to failed concrete floors in a 400,000 square foot warehouse. After a multi-week federal court trial in which the plaintiff sought $10 million in damages, the court ruled that the problem was caused by the owner's defective design and not by defective construction. The district court's decision was upheld by Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Obtained a $6 million payment for a general contractor client by prosecuting a mechanic's lien claim for the amount due to the client. Payment was made early in the process, with minimal attorney's fees incurred.

Obtained a $1.9 million judgment for a general contractor client by prosecuting a mechanic's lien claim for the amount due to the client, and successfully argued to the court that the client's mechanic's lien had priority over the lender's security interest, which resulted in the client being paid in full.

Worked on the litigation team prosecuting a $492 million mechanic's lien claim (believed to be the largest ever recorded in Nevada), which resulted in a very successful settlement for the client.

Regularly assisted out-of-state companies in obtaining their Nevada contractor's licenses.

Represented one of the world's largest contractors in revising its standard construction contracts to comply with Nevada law for a high-profile, multi-billion dollar construction project in northern Nevada.

Represented low bidders in bid protest matters several times for public works projects where a bid was challenged by the second bidder. Convinced a public agency to award a contract to the client.

Represented several construction-manager-at-risk (CMAR) contractors to assist in compliance with Nevada's public works CMAR statutes.

Serves as an Administrative Law Judge for the Nevada State Contractors Board.
