PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Mr. Newby is a skilled litigator and business counselor with particular experience in handling the requirements of complex commercial litigation, including cost-effective discovery and fact investigation, strategic motion practice, settlement from strength, and trial. He regularly advises high net worth individuals, local businesses and national businesses with local issues on navigating Nevada's unique legal environment, proactively counseling clients on strategies to avoid costly litigation.

When litigation does become necessary, Mr. Newby has handled high-stakes litigation for clients in a variety of industries, including construction. He represented clients in a highly-complex construction dispute for a multi-billion dollar Las Vegas Strip construction project, as well as a dispute over a master planned community, and he has represented clients before the Nevada State Contractors' Board. He also has experience representing clients in the energy sector, appearing before regulatory agencies in Wisconsin and Nevada.

Prior to joining the firm, Mr. Newby practiced civil and commercial litigation with Mayer, Brown, Rowe & Maw LLP in Chicago. During his practice in Chicago, he appeared before the Wisconsin Public Services Commission and argued an appeal before the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

REPRESENTATIVE ENGAGEMENTS

American Ethanol, Inc. v. Cordillera Fund, L.P. 127 Nev. 147C2011. First chair for a jury trial in a shareholder dispute, with the verdict favoring the client after 30 minutes of deliberation and an eventual judgment for the full $1.75 million sought by the client. Upheld an appeal by the Nevada Supreme Court.

Representation of Nevada Caregivers, a coalition of southern Nevada healthcare providers, in the most recent general rate case for Nevada Power Co., for which he achieved a substantial reduction in the proposed rate increase (PUCN # 08-12002).
