PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Mackenzie Warren, a practicing attorney and Vice President of the McDonald Carano Government Affairs & Advocacy group, pairs her background as an investigative journalist with her passion for local and state government to foster creative solutions for clients. Based in the firm's Las Vegas office, Mackenzie focuses on developing practical legislative and administrative strategies while helping clients navigate Nevada's political landscape.

As a native and proud Nevadan, Mackenzie understands the evolving policy needs of the state. Through her close relationships with elected officials and staff at every layer of state and local government, Mackenzie is able to connect with key decision makers and forge relationships for clients aimed at driving productive conversations, ultimately reaching sound policy resolutions. At the core of Mackenzie's government affairs practice is her reputation for integrity and professionalism.

Her journalistic experience has allowed Mackenzie to take a unique approach in her role as both attorney and lobbyist. She began her career as a two-time Emmy nominated television news anchor and reporter for the NBC affiliate in Las Vegas and Reno, where she covered every corner of the state, including Clark County and several local municipalities during the Great Recession and Nevada's hard-fought recovery. Mackenzie served as the station's investigative reporter and capitol correspondent covering the Nevada Legislature in both the 2011 and 2013 legislative sessions.

Mackenzie's legal career began in litigation before evolving into her current government affairs practice. She has litigated before the Nevada Supreme Court, the United States District Court for the District of Nevada and the Eighth Judicial District Court, Clark County Nevada – Civil and Family Division. Mackenzie also dedicates a portion of her practice to pro bono legal services. She is actively involved with the Children's Attorneys Project through the Legal Aid Center of Southern Nevada, where she represents abused and neglected children who are placed in foster care. Mackenzie donated more than 200 hours of free legal work in 2018, and is a member of the 100 Pro Bono Hours Club Award.

Mackenzie graduated from the UNLV William S. Boyd School of Law, where she served as Notes Editor of the Nevada Law Journal, and active member of the Boyd School of Law Society of Advocates (Moot Court Team). Mackenzie was nominated by her law school peers to give the commencement speech alongside former Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. She held clerkships with the Clark County Public Defender's Office and Justice Elissa F. Cadish of the Nevada Supreme Court.
