Zach Noland is an Associate in McDonald Carano's Reno office. He joined McDonald Carano after serving as a judicial clerk for the Honorable Ron Parraguirre of the Nevada Supreme Court and the Honorable Michael Gibbons of the Nevada Court of Appeals.

Zach's business-law practice includes all areas of commercial contract and business law, including formation, governance, and operation of corporations, limited-liability companies, partnerships, business trusts, and other statutory entities. He works with owners, shareholders, directors, partners, and senior executives on all types of commercial transactions.

He serves a broad range of industries and market segments, including healthcare, lodging, mining, energy, telecommunication, gaming, tourism, entertainment, real estate, construction, manufacturing, retail, and professional services. He serves as counsel to sole proprietors, closely held entities, and publicly traded national and global corporations doing business in Nevada. He has been involved in the purchase and sale of business entities and assets, secured financing of commercial transactions, and representation of commercial loan borrowers and lenders.

Zach's work in trusts-and-estates law encompasses asset protection and wealth preservation, business continuation and succession planning, charitable tax and trust planning, estate and trust planning and administration, fiduciary and beneficiary representation, foundation and tax-exempt organization initiatives, and trust modification, reformation, and termination. He assists with probate, trust, and fiduciary litigation. His trust- and estate-clients include business founders and owners, ultra-high-net-worth individuals, and financial institutions.

During law school, Zach served as a Student Honors Extern in the Office of the General Counsel at the SEC, judicial extern for the Honorable Mitchell Dembin of the U.S. District Court, Southern District of California, and research assistant for Professor Thomas A. Smith.
